DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 2. Claims 1, 2, 7, 19, and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Franz applied (USPN 4,845,487) in view of Shannon et al. (5,738,662).

Franz discloses a valve system with an inlet, and outlet, a flexible membrane having a mushroom head (40) and a single stem (42), wherein the mushroom head has an apex, and wherein the mushroom head deforms under pressure, but fails to explicitly teach the valve having a cracking pressure of about .10 bar to .20 bar.

Shannon et al. discloses a medical valve with a varying cracking pressure depending on the specific application and treatment (Column 4, lines 25-50) and wherein the cracking pressure is between .10 and .20 bar (Column 8, lines 17-42).

Therefore, at the time of the invention it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to combine the device Franz with the teachings of Shannon et al. because Shannon et al. teaches the specific cracking pressure of the valve and the ability to change the cracking pressure depending on the application and/or treatment that valve must be used in.

3. Claims 1, 2, 7, 8, 14-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Franz applied (USPN 4,845,487) in view of Shannon et al. (5,738,662) and further in view of Cordner, Jr. et al. (5244463) and Minshall et al. (5009654).

Franz in view of Shannon et al. disclose the claimed invention with a pump and a fluid being administered to a patient but failed to disclose the specific pump used and the specific fluid that will be passed through the valve.

Since Franz disclosed that any pump and any fluid can be used in accordance with the valve, it would have been obvious to combine the references since it is well known in the art to use a rotary peristaltic pump with a check valve such as shown with Minshall et al. (Column 5, line 13-26) and using a pump with a check valve when delivering nutrition to a patient, such as shown with Cordner, Jr. et al. (Column 1, lines 54-64, and entire reference).

Therefore it would have been obvious to combine Franz with Cordner, Jr. et al. and Minshall et al. to obtain the invention as specified in claims 1, 2, 7, 8, and 14-20.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 2, 7, 8, 14-20 has been considered but is moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
